Dear Students,

The aim of the Çankaya University English Preparatory Program is to provide students—whose English proficiency is below the required level for departments in which the language of instruction is English—with the fundamental English skills necessary for success. The program adheres to international standards, ensuring that students can effectively pursue their academic studies in their departmental courses. To this end, our school implements a student-centered program that prioritizes the development of academic language skills through both in-class and extracurricular activities, while taking individual differences into account. Our program aims to foster students who can take responsibility for their own learning, cultivate effective study habits, and apply strategies for acquiring knowledge by promoting learner autonomy. Furthermore, our program aims to equip students with effective communication, critical and creative thinking, self-management, social, and research skills that support their academic, professional, and social lives. In line with this, by providing high-quality, technology-supported education that meets international standards, the program helps students become versatile, well-equipped, and responsible individuals.

The English Preparatory Program provides education aligned with the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR) and the European Language Portfolio, supported by advanced technological infrastructure that includes face-to-face and distance learning opportunities, language laboratories, and in-class and extracurricular activities. Our expert team of Turkish and international instructors not only provides instruction but also offers academic counseling, valuing students as individuals first and foremost. The English Preparatory Program is a modern educational institution, characterized by a dynamic teaching staff that values professional development, nurtures teamwork, and utilizes technology effectively

- Students may attend Summer School at the level determined by their performance. Classes open only if the number of students meets the minimum requirement set by the university. Evaluation of the Summer School is the same as the evaluation of the levels in a regular academic year.

2.11. When are the Proficiency Exams held before and after the Preparatory Program? What are the conditions for taking the Proficiency Exam?

Four Proficiency Exams are held within an academic year in the Preparatory Program. The first exam takes place at the beginning of the academic year to determine whether newly registered students are exempt and whether students who successfully completed B2 or B2+ in the previous year have passed the Preparatory Program. The others are held at the end of the first term, the second term, and the Summer School. To be eligible to take these exams, students must successfully complete the B2 or B2+ level. For these students, the Overall Achievement Grade is calculated as follows: 50% of a B2 or B2+ level grade + 50% of the Proficiency Exam score, totaling 100 points. To be considered successful, students must score at least 60 out of 100. Students in the English Language and Literature and English Translation and Interpreting departments must achieve a score of at least 75.

2.12. What happens if I fail the Proficiency Exam?

- Scenario 1: If a student successfully completes B2 or B2+ at the end of the first term but fails the Proficiency Exam, they repeat the level in the next term according to the rules stated in section 2.9.
- Scenario 2: If a student successfully completes the B2 or B2+ level at the end of the second term but fails the Proficiency Exam, they have two options:

- Option 1: They repeat the B2 level in Summer School. Students who successfully complete this level may take the Proficiency Exam at the end of the Summer School.
- Option 2: They take the Proficiency Exam held at the beginning of the new academic year. This exam is also open to students who passed B2 in Summer School but failed the Summer School Proficiency Exam.
- Scenario 3: Students who fail in both options in Situation 2 must repeat the B2+ level in the new academic year.

2.13. How is attendance evaluated? How can I track my absences?

- In each period, students have an absenteeism allowance for up to the number of weekly class hours (for B2+, up to twice the weekly hours). Students who exceed this limit must repeat the level, regardless of their grades.
- Absence records can be tracked via: <https://webonline.cankaya.edu.tr/>

2.17. Under what conditions is my absence considered excused?
